

Tithi Bhattacharya

Professor of South Asian History and Director of Global Studies at Purdue University

Professor Bhattacharya is a Marxist historian and activist, writing extensively on gender and the politics of Islamophobia. She has been active in movements for social justice throughout her life, spearheading campaigns across three continents. She is the author of The Sentinels of Culture (OUP, 2005), and is on the editorial board of International Socialist Review. She is the editor of Social Reproduction Theory (Pluto, 2017).

What Did Marx Have to Say about Cooking Dinner? Marxism and Gender in the Twenty-First Century

Friday, September 28, 12:30 pm

Gordon Hall | Third Floor Conference Room

418 N. Pleasant Street | University of Massachusetts Amherst

---

Co-sponsors: Program on Gender and Care Work, Political Economy Research Institute; and the Department of Economics, Political Economy Workshop

Free and open to the public | www.peri.umass.edu